Hey Vlad,

For the first three things Amol mentioned, i.e. groups and subtopics. Here's some brief mockups/ideas as a primer. The images of menus are from the product 'Producteev', i

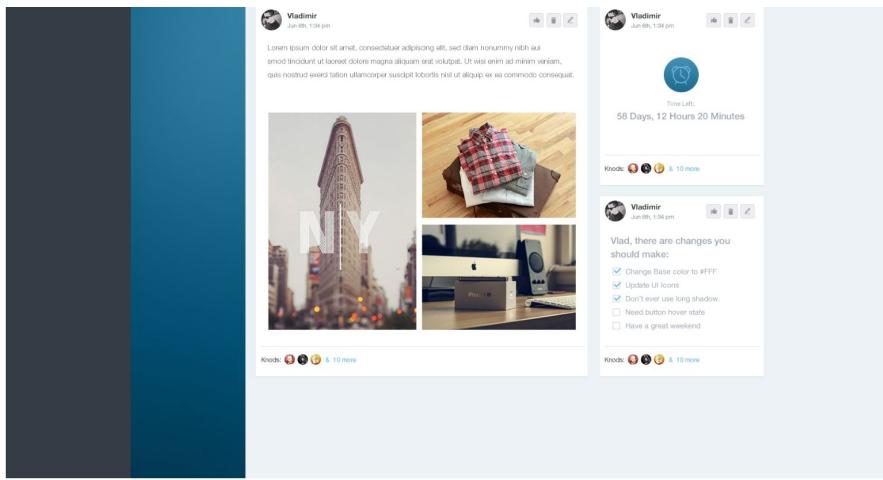

1. A groupname in the people column, e.g. above the people menu and clicking on a topic will reveal indented subtopics.

2. Clicking on the groupname reveals other groups the user is a member of and shifts the 'People' down:

Clicking on the symbol next to the groupname will open a dropdown menu allowing the user to 'Add', 'Remove' or 'Create'. The ability to Add people to groups, Remove people

That's just a primer.

Good.

I have several new design assignments for you related to Knotable-- new features, new screens. You have another chunk of a few days for us this week and next week?

Angus will send you some specific features that need sketching. Here are some of them.

These are edits to the EXISTING DESIGN:

1. Create a group in the People column -- screen flows for dragging people together, doing a popover to "make group" and selecting from all contacts
2. How do you show a Group in the people column (similar to on iOS the group of apps)
3. Folders for topics -- a bundle of several topics. You click and it opens up into several sub-topics. On Topics menu
4. Roles - icons for the Profile avatar that show is this guy Admin or Not
5. Redesign the Profile page (what you see when you click on someone's avatar) to look nice. Show better Facebook and Google "oauth". Better design for the editable field

Angus will send a few more things that need design, and even some sketches in the coming day or two.

We will incorporate this stuff into your NEW design (4.0) in a bit. But first I want to see some ideas that work on app.knotable.com today so we can test them for usability

Yea I see the PSD's but I was asking about getting someone to cut up the PSD's into PNG's for us since I don't have photoshop. We'll need PNG's cut out for the backgrounds, PNG's with transparency for custom buttons, icons, etc. in both retina and non-retina sizes, and specifications about the exact fonts and font sizes used in the comps.

Ok sure. Also, about the group design you sent - great work. Here are some changes / updates:

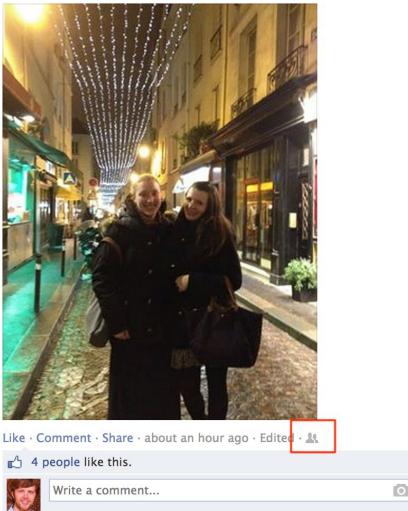

1. Rather than have the + symbol on the group titles, put it on the end of the people card that the user is moving. If the plus symbol appears on each group title, the user may get confused, thinking they're adding the people card to multiple groups.

2. I've changed my mind about the groups dropdown menu. Get rid of it, and the little arrow next to the symbol. What we're going to do is have a new group/permissions settings UI box appear when you click the group symbol i.e. the upside-down trident. I'm thinking a centered box (2/3s of the screen) with a greyed out / transparent view of the main UI behind. I'll be more specific about what settings will go on this view soon.

3. We're going to integrate permissions along with groups, so we need permissions icons that will sit in three places:

1. On the knote card itself (with the avatar and date / time etc)
2. At the top of a topic thread (after title)
3. In the group title

Base the design off of the equivalent FB permissions icons:

Permissions icon:

- mouseover: same as FB - text box with permissions info
- click: dropdown / callout permissions menu

I'll give you some details on the permissions menu and the group/permissions settings UI soon.

4. User role identification in the avatar. We're going to have a hierarchical user system: e.g. Administrator, Instructor, User. The roles of the don't matter for now, I just want you to come up with a way to show a user role in the avatar (e.g. a label)

5. Subtopics: Rather than indents, Amol wants them to work in a similar way to the group / user panel, i.e. when you click on a topic it expands out to reveal subtopics, moving the other topics up (or down) to make space. He is thinking of a transition similar to the iOS 7 app groups, i.e. the zoom in, zoom out thing, but in a list, rather than square, form.

That's it for now. Keep me posted on how you are going with your work / timeframe.

Thanks,

Angus.

Hey I did some work and came to this task: "

He is thinking of a transition similar to the iOS 7 app groups, i.e. the zoom in, zoom out thing, but in a list, rather than square, form."

and realized I will have a bit more time this weekend to make it similar to iOS design but it will look awesome Amol is right. Consider attached files wireframe for what is coming up.

Timeframe: all the time you need. over weekend and next few weeks im all empty for this.

I love the way this is going.

Ideas:

1. Symbols of power in pictorial languages: e.g. 'Ruler' in ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs

2. It'd be good to have an easy way to show different levels of authority: e.g. the Chevrons that Trello uses.

Hieroglyphics group: "S, crowns, dresses, rods, etc."

Hieroglyph	Character code	Transcription	Description	Words
	S1	myv	Crown, white of Upper Egypt	1
	S2		Crown, white in basket V30	1
	S3	j , JV	Crown of Lower Egypt red	1
	S4	JV	Crown, red in basket V30	1
	S5		Crown, double-	1
	S6		Crown, double basket in V30

Or we could use the old alpha, beta, gamma, etc:

Or if we want mystique, we could go with the undeciphered Linear A script

	A	E	I	O	U	A2	O2	U2

I like the king and the simple eye but don't like the others eg crown.

Maybe keep a clip file and check thenounproject and later we will ping Babic to design them up

Hi A,

Looked at the google doc this morning, and my sense is that we have plenty to talk about for the meeting -- mostly we just need to find out more about Ian's vision for entry points, working groups, grading, permissions, etc.

Let's brainstorm from 12:20 and on the walk over, but for now I think we're set.

Are you soon,
Nicole
